End Modern Slavery

Marshalls Plc
Modern Slavery Statement
Period ending December 2021

Marshalls' Annual Modern Slavery Statement has full Board approval and its unreserved commitment to continue to do all that we can as a national business with an international supply chain.

Martyn Coffey
Marshalls' CEO
30th June 2022

We set out to comply with the spirit of the act, as well as the letter of the law. We want to empower our people, suppliers and customers and to demonstrate what can and must be done by the private sector.

We aim to encourage other organisations in our sector to fully engage, to share what we know and have found to be effective, to offer our collateral at no cost to others, to share our challenges, to be open to learning, to lead and support innovative approaches, to identify risks and to address through education, remedy, collaboration and government engagement. We remain committed to leading the way and speaking out when instances of modern slavery are found.

We recognise as a Board that for some of the most vulnerable in our society and in our supply chains the pandemic has further increased vulnerability and further exposed them, their families, and communities to exploitation. The pandemic has meant that human rights and modern slavery remain firmly at the top of our own agenda like never before.

We have a robust and far-reaching Business & Human Rights Roadmap to 2030. We are clear what this means for us in terms of concrete actions in the coming 12 months. We have total alignment across our business to ensure that we do all that we can to eliminate modern slavery in all of its forms. Internal drive, challenge and desire remain strong, we have strengthened our business and human rights resource, and our message is clear; we are focused upon building capacity, respect for human rights and to supporting and upholding international standards.

Highlights from the past 12 months at a glance

- › Reviewed, revised and strengthened our sustainable procurement human rights due diligence system and our processes.
- › Continued to ensure that all of our employees are exposed to modern slavery awareness training - specifically how to spot the signs and how to report, and our stance and policies.
- › Continued to deepen our engagement with suppliers with higher risk supply chains, and in higher risk geographies - working in five geographies to roll out a grievance mechanism and develop an IT platform for live monitoring providing real-time information.
- › Continued to actively engage with the UN, ILO Child Labour Platform, UK Government, overseas governments, international business associations and bodies on the issues of modern slavery.
- › Worked in partnership with Crimestoppers on the delivery of the #slaveryonyourdoorstep campaign, making the entirety of our transport and logistics 'spot and report' collateral free to use for other businesses, as well as the production of an associated podcast featuring experts in the field, blogs and articles - all to raise the awareness and reporting of modern slavery.
- › Continued to provide intelligence to law enforcement in the UK, including the Gangmasters & Labour Abuse Authority ("GLAA"), local law enforcement, the Modern Slavery Helpline and via Crimestoppers.
- › Maintained our Power of Logistics transport and logistics initiative by undertaking a second wave of training, and also engaging two of our biggest suppliers to join forces – Tarmac and Hanson – as well as other independent organisations such as Freight Line International.
- › Published our Modern Slavery Country Risk Mapping for 100% of our business operations and supply chains and making this publicly available.
- › Undertaken advanced supply chain mapping for 100% of our natural stone highest risk supply chains, working in partnership with Traffik Analysis Hub.
- › Implemented an independent Modern Slavery Threat Assessment programme throughout our UK operations, which includes 52 sites/locations.
- › Undertaken an independent internal investigation for one of our highest risk suppliers in the UK in the waste and recycling sector.
- › Continued to actively engage with UK Government and associated bodies to address root causes of modern slavery.
- › Continued to work with Bright Future, and to be a founding member of its co-operative status, offering work opportunities to victims of modern slavery in the UK.

Delivery of modern slavery training, and its impact	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> › Enhance, develop, shape and deliver modern slavery training which empowers and assists internal decision making in support of human rights, and increases the reporting of instances of modern slavery. › Active engagement in the development, shaping and delivery of modern slavery training in the UK – across sectors – using IT. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> › Bespoke training for HR, procurement, operations and environmental teams. › Knowledge partner accelerator programme with internal colleagues. › Roll out of modern slavery and ETI training in four languages. › Continue to actively engage with the MSTD Group.

How Marshalls does business

The Marshalls group of companies (including Marshalls plc and its direct and indirect subsidiaries, referred to in this Statement as "Marshalls"), wherever it operates around the world, is committed to conducting business with honesty and integrity; in treating all people with dignity and respect and in complying with applicable laws, regulations and treaties.

Marshalls is also committed to protecting and promoting human rights globally. Marshalls does not tolerate child labour, forced labour, including prison labour, or any use of force or other forms of coercion, fraud, deception, abuse of power or other means to achieve control over another person for the purpose of exploitation.

Marshalls respects international principles of human rights including, but not limited to, those expressed in the UN Declaration of Human Rights, the UN Guiding Principles on Business & Human Rights, United Nations Global Compact Principles, Children's Rights and Business Principles, Women's Empowerment Principles and those principles contained within the UK's Modern Slavery Act 2015. These principles and commitments are now embodied in Marshalls' Supplier Code of Conduct, which can be accessed via our document library.

marshalls.co.uk/sustainability/document-library

Marshalls complies with the employment laws of every country in which it operates and expects those with whom it does business to do the same. Marshalls also complies with national and international laws governing issues of supply chain management and expects those with whom it does business to do the same. Our Code of Conduct specifies supplier obligations regarding modern slavery and human trafficking.

The UK Modern Slavery Act 2015 requires Marshalls to disclose annually online, as a minimum, the following:

Doing things The Marshalls Way

I. The organisation’s structure, its business and its supply chains

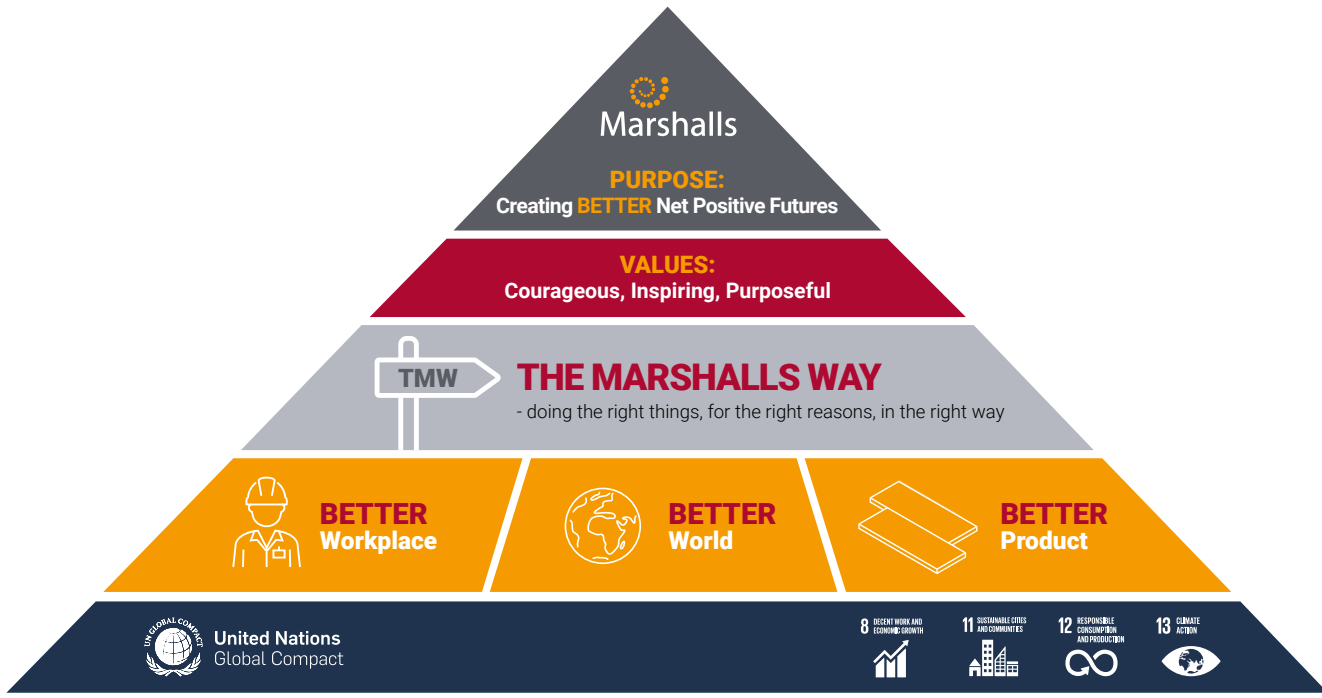

Marshalls’ approach to sustainability is guided by our commitment to the United Nations Global Compact (“UNGC”) – we’ve been a signatory since 2009. For us, sustainability means creating better net positive futures for everyone. We do this The Marshalls Way – doing the right things, for the right reasons, in the right way. We’re clear that the Sustainable Development Goals that we can contribute to most positively are SDG 8, SDG 11, SDG 12 and SDG 13. For Marshalls, the three pillars underpinning this are Better Workplace, Better World and Better Product.

We are committed to making our environmental, social and governance data transparent so our customers can trust the Marshalls brand, our investors can quantify our sustainability credentials and our people can be proud of where they work. Sustainability for Marshalls isn’t new - we’ve been doing the hard work for over 20 years and our credentials speak for themselves. We are a FTSE4Good constituent and we’ve been named a Superbrand for over 10 years. We pay our fair share of tax and proud to have had the Fair Tax Mark since 2015.

Marshalls sources from a number of countries and a full breakdown of our Modern Slavery Risk Analysis can be seen at: marshalls.co.uk/sustainability/modern-slavery

We classify suppliers as follows: (a) goods for resale, i.e. natural stone, (b) direct materials, such as aggregates, sand and cement, and (c) indirect purchases which includes consumables and services, i.e. engineering supplies, canteen and cleaning services.

We are clear that seeking to understand human rights and modern slavery risks is multi-dimensional, and as such we approach this in a number of related ways; the global context in which our operations and supply chains sit, the country and sectoral context and risks, our own internal procurement human rights due diligence processes including how we consider risk and the analysis of information that we require from our suppliers, the monitoring and assessment of higher risk suppliers and how this informs our programme, information that we receive from grievance mechanisms, plus insights and feedback from auditors, NGO observers, bespoke programmes with UN agencies, and other actors.

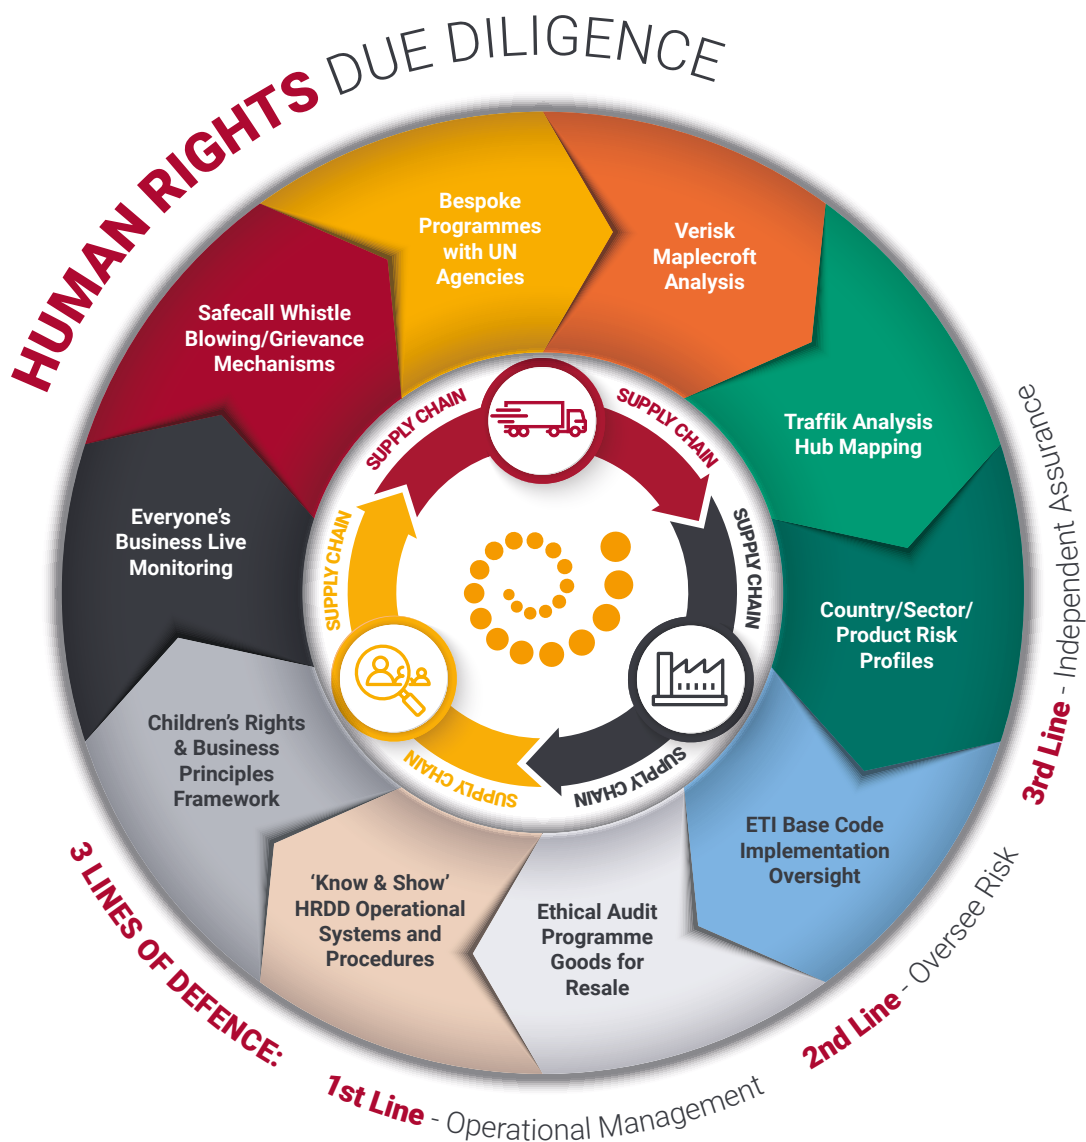

The diagram below expresses the ways in which we actively engage in order to identify risks within our business operations and supply chains.

In 2022, an enhanced IT platform and associated procedures will come online allowing us to capture human rights due diligence information, including modern slavery data, and increasingly human rights and environmental due diligence information ("HREDD"). This new IT platform will allow us to more easily analyse information, identify risk/s, monitor existing risk/s and respond to any changes in risk, to introduce real-time monitoring and audit information, and to remain engaged with suppliers more easily.

Internationally, we continue to focus upon our goods for resale suppliers who currently represent the highest risk for us. Our approach, although structured, will remain flexible enough so that we can respond to the increased information available to us through the introduction of our new IT platform. India, China, Vietnam, Turkey and Brazil are of particular focus. We continue to monitor international developments on a constant basis.

In the UK, we continue to focus upon temporary labour providers, and on those suppliers who use significant amounts of temporary labour within their own operations.

I. The organisation's structure, its business and its supply chains

We have an ongoing programme of independent modern slavery risk assessments ("IMSRA") within our own UK operations.

Marshalls complies with all applicable trade laws. Our Code of Conduct clearly communicates the requirements that suppliers must comply with the laws governing human trafficking and slavery and reserves Marshalls' right to immediately investigate any discovered instances of non-compliance.

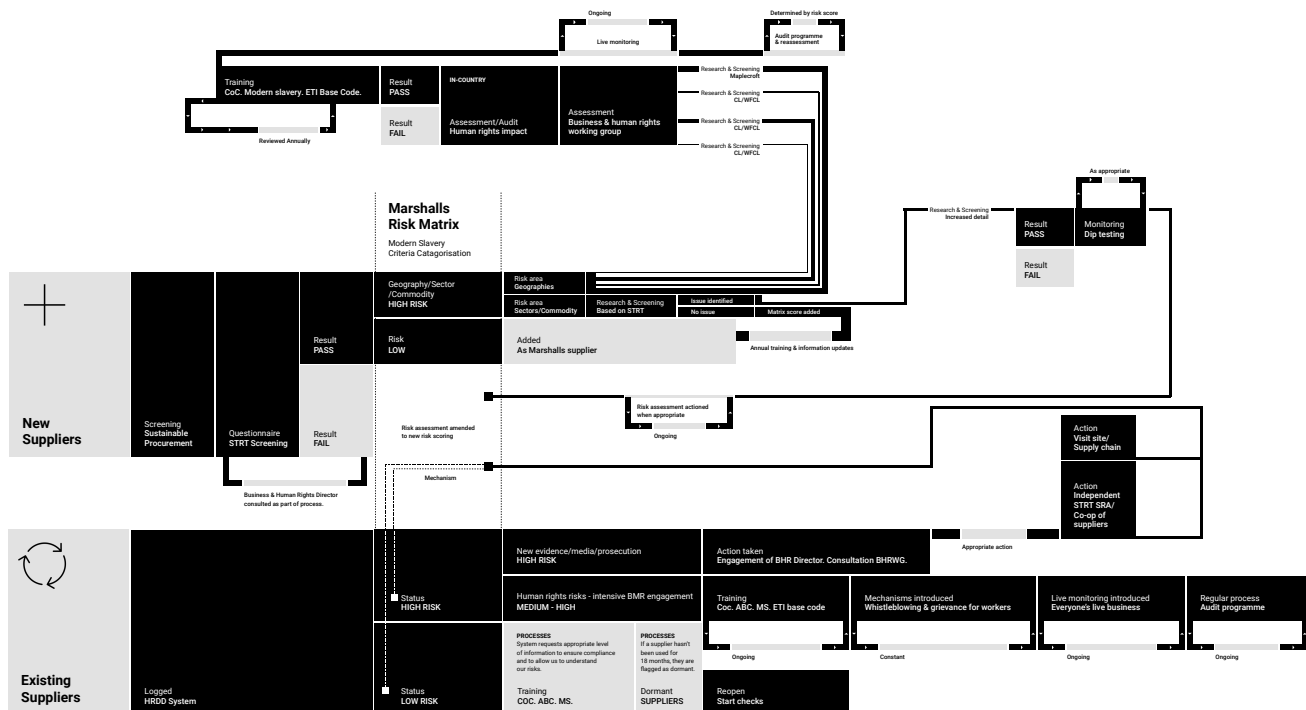

Marshalls has a clear process for the ongoing management and verification of its supplier base which seeks to evaluate and address risks of human trafficking and slavery.

Processes vary slightly for existing suppliers, new suppliers, and new suppliers in high risk geographies.

Marshalls has achieved BRE Ethical Labour Sourcing Standard 6002 for the sixth consecutive year. This is an independent third party verification, which assesses our activities and informs our programme of work moving forward.

Our certification journey mirrors so much about our business and human rights path which started back in 2005. The power of BRE ELS 6002 is continuous improvement; as a tool to push ourselves and continually to raise our game with our human rights work.

Human rights due diligence system

II. Policies in relation to slavery and human trafficking

Marshalls has audit rights in many of its supply contracts, which permit the organisation to audit a supplier's compliance under the terms of the contract. This extends to encompass modern slavery. Under Marshalls' contractual rights to audit its suppliers, we conduct routine audits and assessments of supplier performance. All of Marshalls' procurement team have undergone intensive modern slavery training.

Marshalls has reserved the right to investigate instances of non-compliance including instances of non-compliance with laws governing human trafficking and modern slavery. All Marshalls' contracts require suppliers to comply with all applicable laws. Marshalls' suppliers are also required to adhere to our Code of Conduct, which states the requirement of compliance with laws and ethical business conduct, including those laws and principles prohibiting involvement in human trafficking and slavery. When a supplier accepts our purchase order and/or enters into a contract with Marshalls, they are acknowledging and consenting to comply with all laws and with our Code of Conduct. Other than these contractual obligations with suppliers and Marshalls' reservation of right to investigate, Marshalls does not have a formal supplier certification process.

In terms of internal accountability standards and procedures for employees or contractors failing to meet company standards regarding slavery and trafficking, Marshalls' employees are, under the terms of their employment, expected to follow all laws of the countries in which they operate and all of the organisation's policies, including the Code of Conduct. Employees who violate laws or policies are subject to disciplinary action which in certain cases can lead to dismissal.

Marshalls' contractors are subject to the terms of all contracts with the organisation, including obligations to comply with our Code of Conduct. Marshalls reserves its contractual rights to terminate relationships with contractors who fail to comply with law and/or whose contractual non-compliance is not addressed in a timely manner.

Compliance with our Code of Conduct is an essential factor in Marshalls' decision whether to enter into, continue or extend existing business relationships with a supplier or contractor.

The following policies should be read in conjunction with this Modern Slavery Statement and are available online at marshalls.co.uk/sustainability/document-library

III. Due diligence processes in relation to slavery and human trafficking in its business and supply chains

Our human rights due diligence and ongoing monitoring regarding modern slavery and human trafficking are embedded throughout our operations. We have distinct detailed approaches for existing suppliers, existing high risk suppliers, new suppliers and new suppliers in high risk geographies or higher risk goods/products.

Existing suppliers

- › The global pandemic has slowed the introduction of our live monitoring app which will further embed human rights within our organisation and operations. It will provide real-time information on specific measures regarding modern slavery and decent work. Importantly, the app will include a geo-location facility enabling us to attribute any information to a distinct location, which is important when quarry locations are very rural for example.
- › The pandemic has also slowed the introduction of Safecall, the whistleblowing hotline, to our overseas supply chains identified as high risk.
- › All suppliers receive our Code of Conduct and associated training.
- › All suppliers will receive specific Ethical Trading Initiative (“ETI”) Base Code training.
- › All suppliers will receive revised modern slavery training.

Existing high risk suppliers

- › All suppliers rated by us, according to our internal scoring system, as having a moderate to high risk of modern slavery will be required to undertake a full Slavery & Trafficking Risk Template (“STRT”) assessment – socialresponsibilityalliance.org
- › This STRT activity is complemented by regular ongoing assessments, audits and visits both by Marshalls staff and independent third parties as appropriate.

New suppliers

- › Initial desk-based due diligence is undertaken together with analysis of country, regional and sectoral risk, as seen in our Modern Slavery Risk Analysis – marshalls.co.uk/sustainability/modern-slavery
- › Our desk-based due diligence processes also involve the assistance of third parties such as Verisk Maplecroft and Traffik Analysis Hub.
- › Details of this due diligence activity are discussed and reviewed within the Sustainable Procurement Working Group which includes key individuals from procurement, commercial, HR, sustainability and human rights teams throughout the process.
- › Where a potential new supplier is identified as having a moderate to significant risk, the procurement team consults with the Business & Human Rights Director as part of its process before approving a supplier.
- › New suppliers are asked to complete the STRT process and the feedback is reviewed.
- › Supplier visits are undertaken with information captured within the human rights due diligence IT system.
- › Assessments and audits are undertaken as appropriate either by Marshalls staff or appropriate third parties.

New suppliers in high risk geographies

In addition to those actions taken for new suppliers, suppliers in high risk geographies are subject to enhanced due diligence processes.

We consult with in-country offices of appropriate UN agencies, such as the International Labour Organisation and the International Organisation for Migration.

We seek specialist knowledge, expertise, information and insights from our extensive network; such as the ILO Child Labour Platform, UNGC Network UK Child Labour Working Group and Modern Slavery Working Group.

As appropriate, bespoke programmes are undertaken/ commissioned, and findings are shared internally and externally as appropriate. All of this activity informs whether we engage with potential new suppliers, or not.

Marshalls' internal modern slavery scoring matrix consists of data regarding the risk of modern slavery in specific geographies, sectoral risk and product risk. Information is taken from the following sources:

Enhanced supply chain mapping – Traffik Analysis Hub

Marshalls has been a participant of Traffik Analysis Hub since 2020 – the first in the UK and in its sector. Traffik Analysis Hub is the world's first global data hub to facilitate the sharing of information about human trafficking across all industries and sectors, created by STOP THE TRAFFIK and IBM, and representing an investment in excess of £3 million.

We recognised the power of this global data and have worked closely with Traffik Analysis Hub to develop its supply chain mapping component, and to encourage engagement by others in the private sector, and in governments.

Traffik Analysis Hub allows Marshalls to carry out advanced supply chain mapping against global data regarding human trafficking and modern slavery. The data can be mined to allow us to see our supply chains in context, to understand transport, shipping and logistics in relation to modern slavery, and to see the destination countries, transit and destination as route maps across the globe. We are able to see and understand our supply chains, and the detailed parts of our supply chain which represent the greatest risks.

This advanced system gives us unprecedented insight into our supply chain and business operations to help better understand our risks, focus our resources and also to work with others to eliminate modern slavery.

IV. The parts of its business and supply chains where there is a risk of slavery and human trafficking taking place, and the steps it has taken to assess and manage that risk

As previously stated, Marshalls classifies its suppliers as follows:

- 1 Goods for resale, e.g. natural stone.
- 2 Direct materials, e.g. aggregates, sand and cement.
- 3 Indirect purchases; consumables and services, e.g. engineering supply, canteen, cleaning.

Internal processes and procedures allow us to clearly identify high risk supply chains and/or areas within our supply chains where there is an increased risk of modern slavery. It should be noted that Marshalls' default position is to source from suppliers where we are able to trace back to the raw material.

Marshalls continues to:

- › Map its activities in relation to these three classification areas.
- › Further identify high risk areas within its business and supply chain.
- › Communicate developments in procedures.
- › Together with appropriate third parties, develop protocols which respond to the needs of victims of modern slavery in the UK.
- › Commit to reporting transparently on any and all instances of modern slavery identified within its business and supply chains. Details of this activity are documented in our End Modern Slavery Report which is published annually online.

V. Its effectiveness in ensuring that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in its business or supply chains, measures against such performance indicators as it considers appropriate

Marshalls remains absolutely committed to supporting the efforts of all bodies working to identify and eradicate modern slavery and human trafficking, including key agencies and individuals in the UK: the Office of the Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, UK International Migration & Modern Slavery Envoy, the Gangmasters & Labour Abuse Authority ("GLAA") and others. We continue to work diligently to ensure that individuals do not suffer as victims and that Marshalls does not become a corporate victim of organised criminals engaged in modern slavery and human trafficking. Since our last statement, we have:

- › Reviewed, revised and strengthened our sustainable procurement human rights due diligence system and our processes.
- › Continued to ensure that all of our employees are exposed to modern slavery awareness training; specifically how to spot the signs and how to report, and our stance and policies.
- › Continued to deepen our engagement with suppliers with higher risk supply chain, and in higher risk geographies; working in five geographies to roll out a grievance mechanism, and develop an IT platform for live monitoring which will provide real-time information.
- › Continued to actively engage with the UN, ILO Child Labour Platform, UK Government, overseas governments, international business associations and bodies on the issues of modern slavery.
- › Worked in partnership with Crimestoppers in the delivery of the #slaveryonyourdoorstep campaign – making the entirety of our transport and logistics ‘spot and report’ collateral free to use for other businesses, as well as the production of an associated podcast featuring experts in the field, blogs, articles etc, all to raise the awareness and reporting of modern slavery.
- › Continued to provide intelligence to law enforcement in the UK, including the GLAA, local law enforcement, the Modern Slavery Helpline and via Crimestoppers.
- › Maintained our Power of Logistics transport and logistics initiative by undertaking a second wave of training, and also engaging two of our biggest suppliers to join forces – Tarmac and Hanson – as well as other independent organisations such as Freight Line International.
- › Published our Modern Slavery Risk Analysis for 100% of our business operations and supply chains – making this publicly available.
- › Undertaken advanced supply chain mapping for 100% of our natural stone highest risk supply chains, working in partnership with Traffik Analysis Hub.
- › Implemented an independent Modern Slavery Threat Assessment programme throughout our UK operations, which includes 52 sites/locations.
- › Undertaken an independent internal investigation for one of our highest risk suppliers in the UK in the waste and recycling sector.
- › Continued to actively engage with UK Government and associated bodies to address root causes of modern slavery.
- › Commissioned an independent assessment against the Children’s Rights & Business Principles to better understand the impact of our business on children in the UK, India, Vietnam and China.
- › Continued to work with Bright Future, and to be a founding member of its co-operative status, offering work opportunities to victims of modern slavery in the UK.

Detailed information regarding our progress in relation to each of our specific KPIs can be found in our End Modern Slavery Report at marshalls.co.uk/sustainability/document-library

VI. The training available to staff

All suppliers, both existing and new, are required to undertake Marshalls' online training module regarding issues of legal compliance, including modern slavery and human trafficking. Additional supplier education activity has been extended to include modern slavery and human trafficking and will continue throughout 2022. This activity has included education workshops, online training, face-to-face meetings, newsletters, roadshows, conferences, emails, social media, public relations and communications activity.

Existing and new employees directly involved in procurement, human resources and the supply chain are required to undertake training regarding issues of legal compliance, including modern slavery and human trafficking.

Marshalls also trains its employees in the standards of ethical behaviour, human rights, children's rights, child labour, modern slavery and human trafficking, related policies, procedures and legal requirements. This is currently done via the Marshalls Learning Zone and in person.

Further work will be done to ensure that all employees and temporary workers are trained at induction about our policies regarding modern slavery and trafficking within a sustainability, ethical business and human rights context.

During 2022, Marshalls will continue its internal awareness campaign regarding modern slavery. This will include posters throughout the organisation's UK-based operations, board briefings, briefing of the marketing, procurement and human resources teams, briefing of works/facilities managers, face-to-face meetings with key individuals, specific human resources and procurement team training, specific training for the logistics team, modern slavery online courses available to all employees and a modern slavery app on all company mobile phones.

In addition, supply chain and sourcing directors, managers and employees, departmental directors and Board directors will continue to receive high level briefings on human rights issues. They are also required to undertake the training programme regarding modern slavery and human trafficking.

Marshalls has committed to BSI ISO 20400 Sustainable Procurement. As part of this, all members of the procurement team will engage in enhanced modern slavery training, engagement and e-learning.

Marshalls has further developed clear KPIs regarding modern slavery within each of six focus areas. We will report on each of these in next year's statement and in our Annual End Modern Slavery Report at the end of 2022.

In April 2022, Marshalls acquired Marley, UK leader in their field, manufacturing products such as concrete and clay roof tiles, roof fittings, timber battens, roof-integrated solar panels and roofing accessories. Our next statement will see the incorporation of Marley into our Modern Slavery Statement.
